CLOSING CEREMONY

FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS TAKES OVER THE "FLAME"

Till we meet again . . .

While the Opening Ceremony was festive and welcoming, the Closing Ceremony was celebratory and emotional. And in the interim between the two spectacular ceremonies, over 400 gold medals were won by glowing, bronzed young athletes, the Philippines harvesting 113 of them, and 11 Southeast Asian countries displayed a gallant determination to come together in a oneness of hearts and minds, a oneness in culture and heritage.

At the Closing Ceremony of the 23rd Southeast Asian Games at the Quirino Grandstand, Rizal Park, Manila, tear-stained faces were held high, there were hugs and handshakes all around, and after the minor spat triggered by Thailand's Prime Minister, that apologetic country showed it was brimming with eagerness to host the next SEA Games and its presentation at the turn-over rites almost stole the thunder from the Closing Ceremony

But the Philippines would not be outdone. As in the Opening Ceremony, on November 27, which impressed the visiting delegates (Prince Haji Sufri Bolkiaah of Brunei Darussalam was overheard as saying "It was beyond the ordinary, it was brief but very meaningful", a senator also said: "The Americans may have the money, but they could not do what the French can do, and that's what you guys have done," referring to the director and staff of the ceremony), the Philippines put on a big show for the Closing Ceremony on December 5.

While the guests and delegates were arriving, the chorale group of Globe Telecom INNOVE (they sure know how to get into the picture) struck up a song, an ecumenical prayer rose to the heavens, and cadets of the Philippine National Police Academy (PNPA) did a fancy drill to the victory music of the 23rd SEA Games.

This cued the arrival of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo, welcomed by Philsoc president and CEO Jose "Peping" Cojuangco, Jr., Manila Mayor Lito Atienza, POC chairman Robert Aventajado and Cabinet secretary in attendance, Roberto Pagdanganan. The San Miguel Philharmonic Orchestra (SMPO) and its master chorale struck up the Philippine National Anthem, while the PNPA cadets, at the flag area, linked arms in the universal gesture of unity and brotherhood.

And then all the athletes who competed in the 23rd SEA Games came marching in from the adjacent sides and mingled as one, en masse, one great, throbbing, pure energy, a heroic and epic mass that was not colored by barriers, differences or politics. (It was Peping Cojuangco's idea, and bold statement, to hold the opening and closing ceremonies at the Quirino Grandstand, a place open to the sea and the sky where people of all levels, of all walks of life, can come together and sing and give praise and celebrate as one.

The jubilant athletes rolled toward the area of the stage amidst the flames of the sulo (torches) held high by Ati-atihan dancers and in the company of Gilas, the SEA Games official mascot. A festival of lights unfolded before them, a magical suite of fire from the different countries – lanterns, oil lamps, small torches, lights on earthen vessels and carved wood, candles on a bowl of water – limning the games' insistent message of one heritage, while the Bayanihan Dance Company serenaded them with a medley of Southeast Asian songs.

The chiefs of mission then came forward to light up the flame placed at their respective flag areas, Mr. Cojuangco gave a farewell speech, President Arroyo declared the SEA Games closed, the Sacred Fire was extinguished. The Federation flag was lowered and folded and turned over by the Philippine officials to the deputy minister of Thailand joined by other officials of the next host country, witnessed by President Arroyo and the chiefs of mission standing beside their respective flags.

The Thai flag was then hoisted to the singing of the Thai National Anthem. And Thailand took it from there. The country had sent a contingent of 100 dancers and artists for a dazzling performance called "Variety of Lights and Sounds," complete with lanterns and a 60-foot long Thai boat. The pageantry indicated an amazing preparedness by this country which had come not just to declare their hosting of the 24th ASEAN Games but also to promote the Universiade Games in Bangkok in 2006.
